FOREWORD

Who has endured pain's utmost hell, Could he but find fit words to tell How even for such all may be well—That out of loss we wrest our gain And Love is lord of fear and pain—He might have helpful word to say To others treading life's hard way.

Such word I strive herein to speak; Yet know that words are all too weak To voice our seeing. 'Neath the sun The tiny streamlets prattling run, Proclaiming loud to all who come A shallow flow: the deeps are dumb; No voice is theirs as still they lie To whisper of infinity. The Lord recompense thy work, and a full reward be given thee of the Lord God of Israel, under whose wings thou hast come to trust.

Ruth II; 4.

VERSES AND PARABLES

OUR TRUST

Though now our heart is sick with grief and yearning,

And scarred with pain;

Though joy seems fled, love's fire no longer burning,

And hope but vain;—

Yet do we trust that strength will spring from sorrow,—

That pain and strife

Are but the heralds of a glad tomorrow

Of fuller life.

Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God: For unto thee will I pray. Lead me, O Lord, in thy righteousness, make thy way straight before my face.

Psalms V; 2, 8.

A PRAYER 1

- Dear God, we pray for light; the mists of creed
- Too long have hid thy purpose from our sight:
- Teach us to know ourselves and thee aright,
- And grant us clearer faith for wider need.
- The old creeds fail us now, outworn they breed
- Unfaith, and drive us back into the night

Written A. D. 1891. See also Prayer and Answer, Page 73; and Realization, Page 109.

De have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God. For every one that useth milk is unskillful in the word of righteousness; he is a bave. But strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil.

Hebrews V; 12-14.

From which we struggle upward toward the light:

Their half truths led us once, now they impede.

We need new bottles for our newer wine;

We need a larger faith to help us live A larger life; new knowledge that will give

A lamp to lead us on to the divine: So may we climb to where the Christ-Man stood Alone, our highest type of Love and Good.

For thine eyes are upon all the ways of the sons of men: to give every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings.

Jeremiah XXXII; 19.

THE PARABLE OF THE LITTLE VESSELS

There was a certain rich man which had great possessions: and his heart yearned over all the poor and needy, insomuch that he desired greatly to give them of his treasure. And he sent servants throughout the land to cry aloud and say that whoso would might come and receive freely.

And many which heard said one unto another, Surely this man hath not so great riches that he will give freely whatsoever we may ask; yet, peradventure, he will give to every Pot every one that sayeth unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.

man a little. And they said, Verily it profiteth not that we should toil to the making of many or large vessels, for if we ask much we shall come away empty. And they wrought each man to himself one very little vessel, and journeyed to the rich man's house.

And the rich man filled to every man his little vessel full to overflowing. And when they beheld that there still remained great abundance they said unto him, Give us more, we pray thee. But he answered and said, Not so; for ye have not wherewithal to carry away. And they returned every man to his own place and their hearts were sore For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance.

Matthew XIII; 12.

within them; and they reviled him that he had promised much and bestowed little.

Yet I say unto you that the bounty of God is without measure, and that he gives freely and without cost to every man that which he is able to receive. And to him that hath shall be given. Now the hirth of Jesus Christ was on this wise . . . Joseph went up from Galilee, into the city of David which is called Bethlehem, with Mary, his wife.

And so it was that while they were there, she brought forth her first born son, and laid him in a manger because there was no room in the inn.

Matthew I; 18: Luke II; 4-7.

ON CHRISTMAS EVE

The centuries have rolled away
Since Galilee
Rang with the angel song that hailed
The Christ to be:

And I beside my dying fire,

This Christmas Eve,

Ponder that wondrous tale which love

And faith believe.

And as I muse, the long years fade
Like shadows fled;
I seem again a little child
In fancy led

And there were shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night. And the angel of the Lord came upon them, and said, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

Luke II; 8-11.

To far off Bethlehem which sleeps 'Neath Syrian skies, Where cradled in his manger low The Christ-child lies.

I see the shepherds on the hill
Above the town,
To whom the angel of the Lord
In love came down;

Bearing through widely opened skies,

That flamed like morn,
The message, "Joy to all I bring;

The Christ is born!"

I see the Wise Men of the East
Come from afar,
Seeking the new born King of Men,
Led by his star;

Now when Iesus was born in Bethlehem, there came wise men from the east to worship him. And, lo, his star, which they had seen in the east, went before them till it came and stood over where the child was. And they saw the young child with Mary, his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him.

Matthew II: 1-11.

I see them lay their costly gifts,
Of spices rare
And fragrant myrrh, low at his feet,
And worship there.

I see the Virgin Mother, pure,
Bend from above
To kiss his brow, her eyes alight
With wondering love.

While over all the silent stars
In peace look down;
And angels keep safe watch and ward
O'er David's town.

Ages have passed away, and faith Sometimes grows cold;

For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

I Corinthians III; 11.

Men say it is a fairy tale, That story old;—

I know not! But upon our hearts
Its peace yet lies;

And still we read its words of hope With tear dimmed eyes.

For faith to live we yet must lean On Good above;

And love still finds its highest type In Christ's pure love. And Tesus saith unto them, Have faith in God. For verily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed and cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith.

Mark XI; 22-3.

HAVE FAITH IN GOD

- Have faith in God: so spake a still small voice.
- When pain doth most assail thee, then rejoice.
- For still his love surrounds thee, and his hand
- Doth guide: Be still and understand.
- Have faith in God: when fears oppress thee sore,
- Fear not; but only trust in him the more.
- For still are stretched beneath thee and above,
- The everlasting arms of Love.

He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good: and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God.

Micah VI; 8.

Have faith in God: when dark the shadows fall,

Thou needst to know that he is All in All;

And to his children doth this promise give

In love, "Ye shall not die, but live!"

Have faith in God: I heard the message sweet,

And where he leads I walk with willing feet;

Content and glad to keep his least command,

For now through faith I understand.

This is thy lot, the portion of thy measures from me, saith the Lord; because thou hast forgotten me, and trusted in falsehood.

Jeremiah XIII; 25.

THE PARABLE OF THE KING'S SON

There was a certain child which was born to great riches and power and dominion: For he was the son of a great King and heir to all his possessions.

And it came to pass that evil men, which had rebelled against the great King and loved him not, enticed the child from his father's house, and, having led him beyond the borders of his kingdom, delivered him into the keeping of poor and sinful men that he might become even as these. And

This people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and should turn again, and I should heal them.

Matthew XIII; 15.

the child was enslaved by cruel taskmasters, and suffered hunger and cold and weariness, and was beaten with many stripes.

And the child grew in years and came to manhood. And because of his great misery his heart became hard within him, and was filled with fear and hate and all evil desires; so that he was even as those who were of his company. For he knew not of his birthright, nor of the peace and plenty of his father's kingdom to which he was heir; but because of his ignorance he believed that all men were born to evil and misery. And he could not be persuaded that it was not so, though

The Spirit itself beareth witness that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ.

Romans VIII; 16, 17.

many messengers from his father's kingdom came unto him and declared the truth.

But I say unto you that this one was always heir to his father's kingdom, and that peace and plenty and righteousness always waited for him therein, although he knew it not. And many there be which are like unto him.

And he kneeled down, and prayed, saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

Luke XXII; 41, 42.

THY WILL: NOT MINE

Dear God, long have I trusted erring sense

To search out good, but only found despair;

Now would I lean on thy omnipotence,

And shape my life into one ceaseless prayer:—

That I may do thy will!

Vain is man's wisdom, and a rope of sand

His unhelped strength, and so I stumbled then;—

I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

Luke XV; 18, 19.

But now, at last, I dimly understand Thy ways are higher than the ways of men:— So would I do thy will!

I too have sojourned in a far off place

And fed on empty husks, until I yearned

To see again my Father's house and face,—

So am I come, a prodigal returned:— Seeking to do thy will!

Make strong my faith to turn from things that seem,

Unto the better things which do appear

And when the Comforter is come whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father; he shall bear witness of me.

John XV; 26, (Rev. Ver.)

When we awaken from this fleshly dream,

And to the still small voice of Truth give ear:—
Striving to do thy will!

Teach me to know that the dear Christ who wrought

Among the hills of far off Galilee,

Still gives to all the help that faileth not,

And worketh now thy healing work in me:—

Doing thy perfect will!

And he led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation.

Psalms CVII; 7.

I have taught thee in the way of wisdom, I have led thee in right paths.

Proverbs IV; 11.

WE SHALL BE LED

- We shall be led by ways we do not know
- Unto the Promised Land which faith hath seen,—
- That smiling land where milk and honey flow,
- And where still waters are and pastures green:
- Our fleshly sense would choose amiss, and so
- God leadeth us by ways which he doth know.
- We shall be led in paths we would not choose;

And when he was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not with observation: Reither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there; for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you.

Luke XVII; 20, 21.

- And pillared cloud and fire by day and night
- Shall go before us (lest the way we lose)
- Until that Peaceful Land dawns on our sight:
- Though erring human sense would fain refuse,
- God leadeth us in paths which he doth choose.
- We shall be led,—what matter how or where?
- That Heavenly Kingdom unto which we yearn
- We shall not find far off, and say, "Lo there!"

For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.

Romans VIII; 14.

- It builds within us when to God we turn:
- If we but lean on him and trust his care,
- Our opened eyes shall see Heaven everywhere.

They know not, neither will they understand; they walk in darkness: all the foundations of the earth are out of course.

Psalms LXXXII; 5.

THE PARABLE OF THE DARKENED HOUSE

There was a certain man which had dwelt from his birth in a house which his forefathers had builded. And, forasmuch as these had not loved the light of day because it made plain their shortcomings, this house was cunningly contrived so that the light might not enter therein, but it was illumined only by candles whose feeble light these men had greatly admired.

And it was so that this man, forasmuch as he had lived always in The fool walketh in darkness: all his days also he eateth in darkness; and he hath much sorrow and wrath: he departeth in darkness, and his name shall be covered with darkness.

Ecclesiastes II; 14: V; 17: VI; 4.

that darkened house and had never gone forth therefrom, knew not that there was any greater or better light than that which shone forth from his dim candles. So was he altogether contented with the dim light and shadows of his darkened house, and sought not for the perfect light by which wiser men walked.

And it came to pass when the man was old, so that his eyes were dim and he stumbled and walked astray in the deceptive light of his darkened house, that there came unto him one which had compassion on his unhappiness. And this one said unto him, Open, I pray thee, the shuttered windows and cunningly

Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness.

Luke XI; 35.

contrived doors of this thy house that the light of day may enter therein and thou mayst see clearly.

But he scorned this good counsel and would not be persuaded; for he said, Verily I will not open, for there is no light that is better or greater than the light of these my candles by which I have always walked, and outside of this my house there is only darkness.

And I say unto you that there be many men which live in darkened houses of consciousness and which because of pride and ignorance are satisfied with darkness rather than light. And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward.

Matthew X; 42.

IT WAS ONLY . . .

It was only a sunny smile
And little it cost in the giving,
But it scattered the night
Like morning light
And made the day worth living.
Through life's dull warp a web it wove
In shining colors of hope and love;
And the angels smiled as they

And the angels smiled as they watched above:

Yet little it cost in the giving.

It was only a kindly word, A word that was lightly spoken; It is not the will of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish.

Matthew XVIII; 14.

Yet not in vain,

For it stilled the pain

Of a heart that was nearly broken:

It strengthened a faith beset by fears,

And groping blindly through mists of tears

For light to brighten the coming years;

Although it was lightly spoken.

It was only a helping hand,
And it seemed of little availing;
But its clasp was warm,
And it saved from harm
A brother whose strength was failing.
Its touch was tender as angel
wings,

Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.

Matthew V; 7.

But it rolled the stone from the hidden springs,

And pointed the way to higher things:

Though it seemed of little availing.

A smile, a word, a friendly hand; How easily each is given!

Yet it may win

A soul from sin,

Or smooth the way to heaven.

A smile may cheer the failing heart;

A word may soften pain's keenest smart;

A touch may lead us from sin apart:

And each is so easily given.

Our days on the earth are as a shadow, and there is none abiding.

Chronicles XXIX; 15.

I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work.

John IX; 4.

THE LONG DAY'S CLOSE

"The long day draweth to a close,"
Yet ere its end
We still have time to pluck a rose
To give a friend.

There yet is time, ere drops the sun
Below the west,
To speak a cheering word to one
By fear opprest;—

Time still for many a little deed
Of kindliness,
To help our brothers in their need;
Or soothe and bless.

He that will see good days, let him eschew evil, and do good: . . For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men.

I Peter III; 10, 11: II; 15.

'T will seem perhaps we cannot spare
From our own woe
Time to relieve another's care:
Believe not so!

We who have suffered should be
To rise above [strong
Our pain and grief; to sing a song,
To work, to love;—

That whoso falters on Life's road
May see and hear,
And bear his seeming heavy load
With freshened cheer.

So may our day draw to its close;

Life's sunset gun

Calling us to well earned repose,

And God's "Well done!"

Bear pe one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ.

Galatians VI; 2.

THE LAW OF SERVICE

"The fields are white for harvest But the laborers are few," So spake our Lord in Galilee, And still the words are true;— About you in Life's waiting fields There's work for you to do.

The world still groans in bondage, Its ransom must be bought With untold wealth of loving deeds Inspired by loving thought;— And that which you can do to help Is waiting to be wrought.

Your own load may seem heavy And more than you can bear, Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee, or thirsty, and gave thee drink? And the King shall answer and say unto them, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.

Matthew XXV: 37, 40.

So that for others' burdens You have no strength to spare;— But your own load will lighter grow When you another's share.

The good we do to others
Our own good best assures,
The cup of water given in love
A sure reward secures;—
Carry your brother's burdens,
And God will carry yours!

This is the stone which was set at naught of you builders, which is become the head of the corner.

Acts IV; 11.

THE PARABLE OF THE REJECTED STONE

There was a certain large stone which lay in a field. And the outward appearance thereof was rough and shapeless, and altogether unlovely, and defiled with the dust of the earth.

And many passed that way and looked upon the stone. And it was to them an offense and a block of stumbling; and they marvelled greatly that the owner of the field suffered it to cumber the ground, and commanded not his laborers that they should break it in pieces and destroy it utterly, that he might grow good fruit in the place thereof. And they cursed it, and spat upon it, and defiled it the more, and went their way.

If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?

I John IV; 21.

And at last there came also a certain man which was a workman in the service of the King and had gained much understanding. And when this one looked upon the stone he saw not as the many, but rather he saw that which was altogether perfect and lovely. And his heart yearned that all men should see even as he had seen.

And he stooped down and removed the earth and the stains which deHe that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes.

I John II; 11.

filed it, and he took hammer and chisel and wrought with diligence and understanding to cut away all that belonged not to the perfect reality which it had been given him to see. And when he had made it manifest to the sight of all men, the many came again and beheld, and were greatly astonished.

And they said unto him, Thou hast indeed created a beautiful and perfect thing. And he answered and said unto them, Not so; for I added no least jot or tittle to that which ye despised and reviled because ye saw not the reality thereof; and I took away but that which hid it from your sight. And they knew in their hearts that it was even as he had said.

This is my commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you.

John XV; 12.

And I say unto you that the stone which was rejected and despised of many is like unto thy brother, which thou condemneth because of the evil seeming that hideth him from thy sight and which yet is no part of him.

Thou shalt make thy prayer unto him, and he shall hear thee.  $Job\ XXII;\ 27.$

PRAYER AND ANSWER1

- I prayed for light through dark and barren years
- And found it not; yet knew that light must be,—
- Else Christ had vainly wrought in Galilee
- To save a world from all its pains and fears,—
- And so prayed on. "It must be that God hears,"
- I said, and strained my weary eyes to see
- 1 Written A. D., 1912. See also A PRAYER, Page 5; and REALIZATION, Page 109.

De ask and ye receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts.

James IV; 3.

- His hand roll back the clouds that compassed me. . . .
- At last, a still voice sounded in my ears:
- "He prays amiss who pleads for unearned good,
- And none may see the Light Supernal shine
- Save as his life reflects the Life Divine.
- Through good alone is Goodness understood.
- Follow the Christ who showed the only way;
- So shall thine eyes behold Love's Perfect Day."

Behold I have set before thee an open door and no man can shut it.

Revelations III; 8.

THE OPEN DOOR

- Like one who wanders in fell darkness vast,
- I trod the paths of pain and all unrest
- For weary, weary years, and came at last
- To dream that death of all things was the best:
- When, lo! I came unto an open door Piercing the walls that shut my vision in,—
- Which, surely, I had never seen before

Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ.

Revelations XII; 10.

Because my eyes were dimmed by fear and sin;—

And through that door Love led my stumbling feet

To where the dawn still broadens into day,

And life becomes more sure and glad and sweet

Each passing hour, for Love still leads the way.

. . . . . . . .

Christ opened wide that door for all who lie

Thralled in the prison-house of sin and pain;

But in their blindness men had passed it by,

He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.

Revelations XXI; 7.

Or seeking not aright had sought in vain,—

Had not one selfless seeker for the Mind

Which was in Jesus lifted up anew The lamp of Truth whereby all men may find

That door to peace, and finding it pass through.

Glory to God who set that door for all!

Homage to Christ who opened it for aye!

And love to her who heard the Master's call

To do his work and show anew the Way!

Enter ye in at the strait gate; because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life.

Matthew VII; 13-14.

THE PARABLE OF THE MAN WHICH JOURNEYED

A certain man set out to journey to a far city wherein he desired greatly to abide: and the way thereto lay over high mountains where the path was strait and narrow.

And for a time he walked with exceeding care and diligence; looking neither to the right hand nor the left hand, but always straight before him, lest he should stumble and fall. And his feet slipped not, though the way was rough and steep and danger lay on either hand. And

Then shalt thou walk in the way safely, and thy feet shall not stumble.

Proverbs III; 23.

each day brought him nearer to the city of his heart's desire.

And when he had journeyed prosperously for many days, it came to pass that for a moment he forebore to walk with care, and turned his eyes from that which lay before him. And straightway his feet stumbled from the narrow path, and he fell headlong down a steep declivity, and was sore bruised and wounded.

And I say unto you that whoso journeyeth the Way of Life that leads to the City of Peace must needs walk straitly; turning neither to the right hand nor the left hand, lest he stumble and fall: for the way thereto is also strait and narrow.

Be gibeth his beloved sleep.

Psalms CXXVII; 2.

HE GIVETH SLEEP

"He giveth his beloved sleep."

From the day's toil, and all its tangled skein

Of seeming loss and grief and fear and pain,

Who trust him do not seek surcease in vain.

He dries the tears of all who weep, And gives to his beloved sleep.

"He giveth his beloved sleep."

When we have labored all the long day through

He gives us rest and does our strength renew,—

I will both lay me down in peace and sleep: for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety.

Psalms IV; 8.

Then wakens us a new day's task to do.

Each morn we rise to sow and reap; Each eventide he gives us sleep.

"He giveth his beloved sleep."

Because our faith is weak, our courage small,

He so doth ease our burdens, lest we fall

Toil spent, and fail to reach the goal at all.

All day we climb life's pathway steep,

But when night comes he gives us sleep.

"He giveth his beloved sleep."
Oft-times we falter and are fain to stray;

None shall be weary nor stumble among them; none shall slumber or sleep.

Isaiah V; 25.

But still he keeps our feet in the right way

And leads us safely home at close of day:

Then, as a shepherd folds his sheep, He folds us safe and gives us sleep.

"He giveth his beloved sleep."

His tender love, that spares the bruiséd reed,

Grants such dear boon to our poor human need,—

Till we have grown to Truth and Life indeed;

And, having learned his laws to keep,

Awake in him no more to sleep.

This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.

John XVII; 3.

LIFE ETERNAL

Mortality is but a transient seeming Which some day shall be swallowed up in life,—

When we awake from dreaming
Of matter, pain, and strife;
And grow into sure consciousness
That Being in its perfectness
Is knowledge of the Principle of Love
In which we live and move.

There is no death, for all that seems to perish

Has never lived, and is not known of God.

If the Spirit of him that raised up Iesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ Iesus from the dead shall give life also to your mortal bodies through his Spirit that dwelleth in you.

Romans VIII; 2, (Rev. Ver.)

This seeming life we cherish Is kindred to the clod,

And must return to dust from which it sprang:

But ere the morning stars together sang

Man was—and must for evermore exist;

Else God were unexpressed.

God is our Life, and so we cannot be The thralls of Death, and subject to Decay:

Only our sense of death can pass away,

Our life abides in God through all eternity.

Mortality awhile may hide the light;

Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is.

I John III; 2.

- Or erring sense the perfect vision dim;
- But we were fashioned by the Infinite,
- And some day we shall know, and be like him.

O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

1 Corinthians XV; 55.

For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Iesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.

Romans VIII; 2.

THERE IS NO DEATH

- Even as a little child, with simple prayer,
- Lies down to sleep, content, when daylight dies;
- Knowing the dawn will greet his waking eyes,
- And a new day new joys for him prepare:—
- So may we, trustful of our Father's care,
- Lie down, serene, knowing we shall arise
- To greet a fairer dawn with brighter skies,

Then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory.

I Corinthians XV; 54.

- And keep our way up Life's eternal stair.
- We need not fear to follow where Christ led,
- Or to commit our ways unto God's will;
- Surely his hand will guide and guard us still,
- And, there as here, his love supply our needs.
- God is our Life, and he will not withdraw
- The life he gave, nor change his changeless law.

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let him have dominion. So God created man in his own image.

Genesis I; 26, 27.

Let us therefore cast off all the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light.

Romans XIII; 12.

THE PARABLE OF THE LAKE WHICH MIRRORED HEAVEN

There was a certain beautiful lake which lay far from the cities of men, in the still forest solitudes. And the soft summer air above it rippled not its shining surface which was like unto a mirror, reflecting perfectly the blue vault of heaven and all the fleecy clouds that floated there.

But it came to pass that an icy wind stole through the forest from the far fens and marshes which lay Take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

Ephesians VI; 13.

beyond; and blew upon the lake so that its surface became troubled and lashed into waves. And immediately the similitude of the blue sky and fleecy clouds which had appeared in its still depths was shattered into countless fragments so distorted from reality that none could believe them the reflection of the summer heavens: but would have judged them rather to be the flying shadows of weird and terrible creatures of evil.

And like unto this lake is man; which, when he looks steadfastly above, and is not troubled by evil thoughts or desires, reflects only that which is good and perfect: but when the winds of error blow upon him, and he is troubled thereby, reflects only distorted and writhing shapes of evil seeming.

Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breast-plate of righteousness; . . Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.

So doth it concern us greatly that we should guard ourselves with exceeding care against all the winds of error; that we may reflect only the perfect will and attributes of our Father which is in Heaven. And all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.

Matthew XXI; 22.

REALIZATION 1

- Dear God, the light is come, our outworn creeds
- Drop from us as a garment, and our sight
- Grows clear to see ourselves and thee aright;
- We trust thy love to meet our utmost needs,
- And know thy hand sustains us.

  The foul breeds
- Of nameless doubts and fears that thronged the night,

• thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come.

Psalms LXV; 2.

- Like phantoms disappear in Truth's clear light;
- Self only, now our upward way impedes:
- For thou hast given new bottles for Truth's wine;—
- Hast given a larger faith to help us live
- A larger life; new knowledge that will give
- A lamp to lead us on to the divine:
- And though our feet may falter in the way,
- Yet shall our eyes behold Love's Perfect Day.

I hold it truth with him who sings To one clear harp in divers tones, That men may rise on stepping stones Of their dead selves to higher things.

LORD TENNYSON.

AFTERWORD

So have I written. Now I lay My pen aside, and "Finished" say!

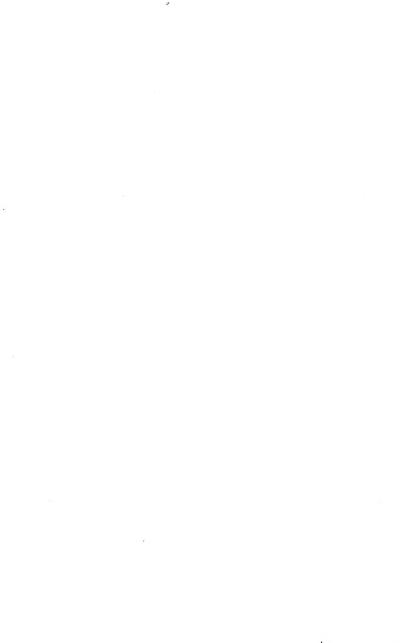

For me, I count this work all gain;
Born of a faith men said was vain,
It helped me vanquish fear of pain:
Now I am moved to send it forth,
With hope that others may find worth
In it. I know it cannot be
To them what it has been to me;
Yet it may shed one little ray
Of light upon some traveler's way.

Enough, if it contains one word
In which the voice of Truth is heard
By one, enveloped yet by night,
Who yearns to glimpse the morning light!
